The user interface components of Service Edge run on the web. They have a minimal set of the system requirements to ensure that they operate correctly on the computers or devices from which users access the UIs.